Hi Jackie,

We have not been there. We are prohibited from responding to DOD facilities unless it's an emergency, off-site release. We can advise as necessary. Thanks!

Hi Loren and Harry,

I hope you're both well.

I spoke with Anthony Nesky from the EPA Radiation Protection Division today. His office received an inquiry from Andre Patterson, who is a resident of Treasure Island. Mr. Patterson is concerned about the levels of radiation at a cleanup site on Treasure Island that the Navy is the lead for. Are any OSCs or RPMs in your sections involved with this cleanup action? I looked on our SFD site overview and OSC websites but couldn't find any site overviews for the Treasure Island Naval Station. Is DTSC overseeing the cleanup?

I will be working at home tomorrow and Monday and can be reached on my cell at Personal Phone / Ex. 6.

Thanks so much,

Jackie

Dear Jacqueline:

I work in the communications section of the EPA Radiation Protection Division, and took a call from resident of the Treasure Island, San Francisco area. The Navy is currently conducting a remediation there, and the caller claimed that the remediation involves cleanup of radioactive contamination. The caller also thought that the Navy's remediation was "sloppy," and that individuals had surveyed the ground and detected radiation. EPA is not in charge of the cleanup; my understanding is that the state is overseeing the cleanup.

The caller contacted us in Washington because he had contacted the city of San Francisco and the Navy before, and was of the opinion that they were not taking this community seriously. My question for you: is there anything your office could do to assist with this individual's complaints?
